

Happy Thanksgiving

When I woke up this morning, I knelt down to pray, “Lord, walk close-by with me today.
Please bless my friends and family.
Let them know how much they mean to me.
We may be miles and miles apart,
but let them know they’re still in my heart.”

I don’t always take the time to say that you’ve blessed my life each and every day.
Time changes things in this world that we live,
but the gift of love continues to give.
It grows and grows like the small mustard seed
as it fills the hearts of those in need.
Sometimes I thought you’re too good to be true,
but then I remembered that God made you!
He makes everyone the very best that they can be - just take a look and you will see the special gift planted deep inside.
It’s the gift of love that you cannot hide.
It shows through your eyes and radiates when you smile.
You may try to hide it, but it comes back in awhile.

It soon is Thanksgiving and in case you don’t know,
you are of value wherever you go.
You’ve blessed my life by just being you.
No one can do the things you do.
Thank you from the heart for your gift of love.
I know it’s God’s gift sent from above.
Be blessed. Be safe as you travel life’s way.
Happy Thanksgiving
sent with love on this special day.
