

I want to thank you, Father, for giving me this day.
Thank you for my family who are near and far away.
Thank you for the new friends who have touched my life this year.
Let them know how much they bless me and how glad I am they're here.

Thank you for the morning sun that lights the road ahead and the twinkling stars that shine at night as I lay here in my bed.
Thank you for the birds that fly, the trees, the grass and snow.
Thank you for your mighty works and all that heaven knows.

Thank for our soldiers, our police and firemen who fight to keep our nation safe no matter where or when.

Thank you for the hearts of all the volunteers who care.
Sometimes they go unnoticed, but you know they are there.

There are so many things to thank you for,
but the one I hold most dear, is our loving Savior Jesus and that he is always near.

You gave your son to die for all and in 3 days he rose again.

He loved us more than his own life and took with him our sins.

There's not enough time to thank for all the things you've given me, because if I started now, it would take an eternity.

With all that said, please see my heart and know that I love You.

Thank You and Jesus for all your love and for everything you do.

Happy Thanksgiving 2011!
