

Small Dreams

Some houses may break and others may fall, but the family survives in spite of it all.
Just like the body through injury and pain, you may lose some part, but the spirit remains.
No "body" is perfect, if you just look around, The perfection's inside for it's here God is found.
God loves you so much though at time you may doubt. Just hold on and He'll show you what love's all about.
Your "Badge of Courage" was given to you. It may be a test to see what you'd do.
I know you are scared now, but will you trust in God still? You must always remember, the pain's not His will.
He may allow it to happen and I know it's not fair, but if you trust in Him now, He will always be there.
All things work for good if you believe in your heart. Now be at peace and be still. Then let Him do His part.
God is beside you and dreams do come true. When the journey is hard, He will see you through.
It's so typical of God, when our dreams are too small to take them away and get rid of them all.
You just can't imagine what things lie ahead. The small dreams you had are now His dreams instead!