

I'll Live for You

I woke up this morning thinking of you.
I know you're in heaven where I wish I were, too.
They are days I will question why you are gone.
Doesn't God know I need you and with me you belong?
Then I get a small glimpse of what heaven must be
As I look out my window, God shows it to me.
In heaven I see Jesus with his arms around you.
He tells you he loves you and your pain is now through.
Then he shows you all the others who, too, had to die.
They are happy and laughing and no longer ask why.
All around there are flowers and animals galore.
There are many angels singing and here comes some more.
Jesus tells you in heaven, there will only be peace,
Because the language is love so all fighting will cease.
The best thing I feel and I know in my heart
Is that though I can't see you, we're still not apart.
Your body may be gone, but your soul is now free.
You live with the Father, but he left your memory.
The times when I think of you is a sign from above.
It's God telling me you're okay and he sends me your love.
It's also a reminder of the things I cannot see.
It's you sitting there with Jesus and you're memory inside me.
So tomorrow when I wake up, I will still think of you,
But the day will be different because I'll live for you, too.

Death is not the ending,
but the door to eternal life with those we love.
