

2015

Time

2016

Time, where are you? What made you slip away?
I had a list of things to do, but that was yesterday.
I planned to call a friend and help to feed the poor.
I also wanted to buy a thank you gift for the lady at the store.
I forgot to send a birthday card to the old man down the street.
Then I was to plan a lunch so a new friend I could meet.
It's your fault time! You move too fast. I can't catch up to you.
A whole year has already passed away. Now what am I to do?
I'll make a list of things to do. Will you help me out this year?
How about you stay behind and in 2016 I'll steer?
I'll pick and choose the things I do and do the things that matter.
I'll remember to give food to the poor and in turn I won't get fatter.
I'll pray every day and read the Bible. That is where I'll start.
The most important things in life are the things that touch the heart.
Who can I help? What can I do to make someone's life load lighter?
What can I say to each stranger I meet to help their day shine brighter?
Oh time... its really not your fault that I plan to do things tomorrow.
Today is the day God gives to us and tomorrow we cannot borrow.
No one knows the amount of time God gives us each to live.
Make each day count and always remember - it's the love you have to give.
Time is a friend God gives to us. Use it wisely and you will see -
There are enough hours in each day to be who you want to be.

HAPPY 2016! LIVE EACH DAY YOU'RE GIVEN TO THE FULLEST!
