

What's Really Important

I heard you lost your job last week and I'm sorry for the pain,
But there is a God who loves you and it's His love that will remain.

I know you must be angry. I know you must be hurt,
But God left you what's important. He left a whole life's worth.
Sometimes the things we hope for aren't always what God planned,
But if you could see the future, I know then you'd understand.

There may have been a lesson you missed the first time through
So God let you choose another road while he walked right next to you.
He was there through every heartache. He is there with you today.
Your job may be gone and bills are high, but God's love is here to stay.
Remember what's really important. Look around. It's all still there.

You still have the love of the Father
With your family and friends who care.
